

About us

The Macmillan Unit at Christchurch Hospital is a Specialist Palliative Care Unit for patients in South East Dorset and South West Hampshire. It is run by the Royal Bournemouth and Christchurch Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust, and the core services are met by the Hospital Trust. In 2009 it was awarded 'Practice Development Unit Status', making it a Centre of Excellence.

'Macmillan Caring Locally' is a Trust operating from offices in the Macmillan Unit, which provides funding to enhance this care, and to provide an attractive, homely environment for patients and their families and visitors.

We also provide funds for nursing and medical equipment to improve patient treatment and comfort. Since 1974 we have supported major service developments in palliative care in the local Community, and funded innovative cancer diagnosis and treatment procedures.

Making a difference

By donating money to Macmillan Caring Locally you are ensuring that the dedicated team at the Macmillan Unit can offer enhanced care to Patients on the Ward and those who are being cared for in their homes. You are also investing in our future plans to innovate and improve palliative care services in our Community.

Standing Order

The aim of Macmillan Caring Locally is to support those who are suffering from cancer and other life threatening illnesses in our local community, as well as providing help and support for the whole family.

We act as the custodian of all funds donated towards the care of the patients and their families, and we both initiate and respond to a wide variety of needs supporting improved cancer diagnosis and treatment.

Legacies

Leaving a Legacy to Macmillan Caring Locally is a wonderful way to ensure that the specialist care we provide to our patients and their families will be available for future generations.

If you plan to make a will you should seek the advice of a solicitor or other professional advisor. Our website www.macmillanlocal.org has useful information about different types of Legacy and how your gift will be used.

The details of our Charity, including our registered Charity Number, are listed on the reverse.
